CHAPTER 3

WHAT DOES THE RESEARCH SAY ABOUT CO-TEACHING?

Co-teaching has become the most frequently used service delivery model for inclusion, according to a report by the National Center on Educational Restructuring and Inclusion (Kloo & Zigmond, 2008). While co-teaching continues to grow in popularity, however, it may be the case that research has not Seventh grade science teacher, Amanda Watson shared pictures of our students participating in the NOAA Fisheries Science Summer Camp this week.

Students learned about marine wildlife conservation, technology and data collection by NOAA scientists, fisheries management, careers in marine science and more!

Congratulations to National History Day participants from KIS. Owen Barr took second in the NATION for his Junior Paper - The European Organization for Nuclear Research: Exploration, Encounter and Exchange Through Nuclear
